

If you lived in Spanish Harlem, would you choose Love or Money?dR3 Films presents its first movie screening in New York City*

New York, NY – June 1, 2007 – Get ready for your cheeks to ache from laughter, and be flung into a scene from Spanish Harlem that overflows with beautiful women, mobsters, Rasta's, and of course, Italian and Latino gangs. On Thursday, June 7th, at 7:00 p.m., relish on a hot June evening at the sexy Bryant Park Hotel in midtown Manhattan.

Before viewing the screening of Spanish Harlem "For Love or Money," indulge in Complimentary Kronenbourg 1664, Spanish chilled white wine, Newcastle Brown Ale, and the featured cocktail, El Barrio. Hosted by dR3 Films, the movie's creator, guests will kick back and relax with a cocktail reception before and after screening, and tickle their ears to the sounds from a Spanish Guitar and Violin performed by Alex Haddad and Tristan Howell.

dR3 Films is a New York based global movie production company. In addition to North America, dR3 has offices in Europe, Australia, and South America (www.dR3films.com). Its latest production puts the spotlight on New York City with the release of Spanish Harlem "For Love or Money". The movie features Nemo played by David Miller, who is a stereotypical playboy caught in the crossfire of 2 pregnant women and their fathers who are a part of the Italian and Latino gangs. And to throw habanero sauce on this scenario further, Nemo and his friend TTC, performed by Derek Brantley, have one hour to pay Juju, the Rasta King weed dealer of Harlem 125th.
